

Winter 2016 Class Number 32173

What might SCU students and community members teach each other about how writing works in the world beyond our campus? Checkout ENGL 196!

Where: O'Connor 210

When: MW 5:25 -7:10 pm

Instructor: Tricia Serviss

English 196 Writing in the Community: Designing Community Writing Partnerships

This course uses action research—a research approach that invites students and community members to investigate something they both care about together—to establish writing projects in public venues. We will design workshops such as writing op-eds on local issues, writing application essays for college applications and scholarships, writing life stories with older folks, and more.